HANDBOOK FOR STUDENTS TAKING THE FINAL HONOUR SCHOOL IN PHILOSOPHY AND THEOLOGY IN 2021

This Handbook applies to students starting the Final Honour School in Philosophy and Theology in Michaelmas term 2019 and therefore expecting to be examined in Trinity term 2021. The information may be different for students starting in other years.

The Examination Regulations relating to this course are available at https://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/examregs/2019-20/hosophilandtheo/studentview/. If there is a conflict between information in this handbook and the Examination Regulations then you should follow the Examination Regulations. If you have any concerns please contact the Director of Undergraduate Studies at the Faculty of Theology and Religion, Dr Mary Marshall.

The information in this handbook is accurate as at 17.10.2019, however it may be necessary for changes to be made in certain circumstances, as explained at www.ox.ac.uk/coursechanges. If such changes are made the department will publish a new version of this handbook together with a list of the changes and students will be informed.

The up to date version of this handbook is available in the Undergraduate Handbooks section of the Faculty’s website. This is version 1.1.

1. GENERAL INFORMATION AND ADVICE

INTRODUCTION

This Handbook is designed to welcome you to the Faculties of Philosophy and of Theology and Religion and to inform you about the facilities and services available to students. It will also provide information about the structure and content of your course; its aims, the organisation of teaching and the expectations of study. The handbook will outline how the course will be assessed, the opportunities for feedback on your learning and advice concerning formal examinations. You will also find information about student representation and providing feedback to the Faculty and University, as well as directions to further information about student life.

Welcome from the Directors of Undergraduate Studies

We are delighted to welcome you back to the Faculties of Philosophy and of Theology and Religion. The undergraduate curriculum showcases key areas of scholarship here in Oxford. We hope that you will enjoy experiencing an exciting range of what we have to offer, whether you are exploring familiar subjects or discovering new ones. With our colleagues, we look forward to working with you and are ready and able to offer advice and support. Please accept all our very best wishes as you embark on the Final Honour School.

Prof. Stephen Mulhall (Philosophy) and Dr Mary Marshall (Theology and Religion)

You will also find a lot of very useful information in the Handbook of your college or hall. Please consult the relevant college website or your college tutor or college office for further details.
USEFUL CONTACTS AND SOURCES OF INFORMATION

Please note that your college tutor is the first point of reference for all queries about your course. The Directors of Undergraduate Studies, Prof. Stephen Mulhall (Philosophy) and Dr Mary Marshall (Theology and Religion) can also be consulted about academic matters. Dr Marshall advertises drop-in sessions and students are also very welcome to make an appointment with her. Prof. Mulhall attends the termly Philosophy UJCC (see section 6 below) and, outside that committee, students may be in touch with him by email.
The Philosophy Faculty

The Philosophy Faculty is based at:

Radcliffe Humanities,
Radcliffe Observatory Quarter
Woodstock Road
Oxford
OX2 6GG

As well as housing the Philosophy Centre, the Grade II listed building also contains a combined Philosophy and Theology Faculties Library and the administrative offices of the Humanities Division.

The Radcliffe Humanities building houses the Faculty’s administrative staff, provides offices for some of the Faculty’s research projects and centres, and offers dedicated space for Philosophy graduate students (as well as some general study space, available for use by all Humanities graduates). It contains four large teaching rooms, two of which – the Ryle Room on the first floor and the Lecture Room on the second floor – are allocated to the Philosophy Faculty. The building also contains some smaller meeting rooms used for small group teaching or supervisions. There is also a common room on the ground floor, and vending machines (for drinks and snacks).

The Theology and Religion Faculty

The Theology and Religion Faculty is on the second (top) floor of:

The Gibson Building,
Radcliffe Observatory Quarter,
Woodstock Road,
Oxford
OX2 6GG

Your University Card will provide access both to the building and to the Faculty.

The Faculty includes the following teaching spaces and facilities:

- Lecture Room
- Seminar Rooms 1 and 2
- Small Meeting Room
- Tutorial Office
- Board Room
- Toilets, including accessible facilities

As well as the offices of several academics and administrators.

There is also a graduate study space, graduate common room and kitchenette; these are not usually used by Undergraduates, except by special permission or invitation.
Faculty Office hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday to Thursday and 9am to 4pm on Friday. In the Faculty Office you will find the following staff, who are always happy to help!

Initial point of contact for enquiries about the course

In the first instance and especially for enquiries about your individual situation, you should consult your college tutor. However, you are welcome to address any enquiries relating to the course and Faculty to the Director of Undergraduate Studies for Theology and Religion, Mary Marshall, who will answer or forward your query to colleagues or other departments as necessary.

Undergraduate Student Representatives:

At the Faculty of Theology and Religion Undergraduate Student Representatives are elected on a yearly basis each Hilary Term to serve from the following Trinity Term, an up to date list is available on WebLearn. See further details below.

At the Philosophy Faculty, there is an Undergraduate Joint Consultative Committee (UJCC) which covers Philosophy matters across the Joint Schools. Elections for the Chair of the UJCC for 2019-20 are currently taking place and students will be notified of the outcome. See further details below.
Welfare and Support Services

Colleges make provision for student welfare and students should consult their college tutor, officers and JCR for details of arrangements made to support their students. In addition, the University provides the following for all students who require such support:

- a counselling service
- childcare advice
- disability assessment and advice
- a harassment advisory service

Further details of these services are included in the Student Handbook, which is updated annually.

There are also two Harassment Officers who are the primary contacts within both Faculties for students with welfare concerns:

Dr Hilla Wait (Philosophy) Dr Alex Kaiserman (Philosophy)
Philosophy and Theology Faculties Library Balliol College
hilla.wait@bodleian.ox.ac.uk alexander.kaiserman@balliol.ox.ac.uk

Professor Justin Jones (Theology) Professor Laura Quick (Theology)
Pembroke College Worcester College
justin.jones@theology.ox.ac.uk laura.quick@theology.ox.ac.uk

Services for students and staff with disabilities

The University operates a code of practice to provide equality of opportunity for those with disabilities. The Equality and Diversity Unit offers advice and guidance to disabled students and staff on a range of issues including disability related funding, benefits and other sources of support. The Faculty is part of the Common Framework on supporting Students with Disabilities. Further information and useful contact details can be found at the University Disability Advisory Service website. The Disability Office work through a network of Disability Contacts at College and Departments in order to advise on the Disabled Students Allowance and appropriate study support needs.

University Disability Office
+44 (0)1865 280459
disability@admin.ox.ac.uk

If you have a disability and require support or equipment to help in some aspects of your study, every effort will be made to provide the best solution for you. It is important that you discuss your needs with your college tutors as soon as possible, preferably prior to arriving at Oxford in order that provision can be made. It is also important that the Faculty Office is made aware of any special access requirements.
At the Faculty of Theology and Religion, the Coordinator is Audrey Cahill (Head of Administration and Finance) and the Lead is Dr Sarah Apetrei.

The Philosophy Faculty Disability contact is Dr Hilla Wait.

Your college is also able to provide advice, help and special facilities.

Oxford SU has a vice president with special responsibility for Welfare and Equal Opportunities. This officer is elected annually and can be contacted at vpweo@oxfordsu.ox.ac.uk

An Access Guide for People with disabilities gives details about the accessibility of virtually all buildings within the University.

Oxford University Library Services has a centre that provides support for students, primarily for those with visual impairment but also for those with specific learning disabilities (SpLD) or mobility impairment. The Accessible Resources Acquisitions and Creations Unit (ARACU) can provide texts in a range of alternative formats such as audio, digital and large print. For further information, please contact:

Disability Librarian
Teresa Pedroso
+44 (0)1865 283862
disability.librarian@bodleian.ox.ac.uk

Special arrangements can be made to help disabled students, including those with dyslexia, dyspraxia and other SpLDs in taking their University examinations. If you require special arrangements please discuss this with their tutors and their College Doctor as soon as possible after arriving at the University.
IT and IT Services

All members of the University are subject to the University’s Regulations Relating to the Use of Information Technology Facilities and provision is managed by IT Services. IT services is a large department which provides a range of services and facilities. Through them, undergraduate students are able to access training and advice and to obtain free or discounted software (subject to availability, terms and conditions). For direct help their service desk is located at:

13 Banbury Road
Oxford
OX2 6NN
+44 (0)1865 612345
help@it.ox.ac.uk

Your College handbook and the IT officer at your college will advise you on what IT provision is made for students at your college, including guidance on how to use your own devices.

WiFi

Most buildings in the University (including the Bodleian libraries and PFTL, the Faculty of Theology and Religion and Colleges) are covered by the Eduroam and OWL WiFi networks. Please refer to the IT Services help website for information on how to access these networks. Access to Eduroam enables you to access free WiFi not only in most Oxford University buildings but in many Universities and Academic institutions around the world.

Single Sign-On (SSO)

All new University members are automatically issued with a Single Sign-On (SSO) username and password. You will need to activate this account. It provides vital access to services such as WebLearn, Student Self-service (including the self-registration system) and electronic library provision. It also allows you to access your university email account (Nexus), which you should use for all email communication with the University.

Mailing Lists and Communication

Students are automatically subscribed to a number of Faculty mailing lists which are the principal means of communicating important and urgent information. It is therefore essential that you maintain your university email account and check it at least once a day. If you think you have been missed off a relevant mailing list, please contact the Faculty Office.
Libraries

The library provision in Oxford University is outstanding. During your time in Oxford, you may use a variety of lending and reference libraries. New students receive an induction into Library services and facilities during their first week but if you require any guidance subsequently, please consult the library staff, who might advise and direct you to training opportunities.

The Bodleian Library

The Bodleian is the University’s main library over a number of sites in Oxford. All undergraduates are entitled to access its facilities on production of their University Card. Full details of regulations, facilities and opening times are published on the Bodleian Libraries website. Many of the libraries holdings (especially on central Bodleian sites) are for reference use only and many are held in closed-access bookstacks, from where they may be ordered from the stack to any library in the Bodleian Group.

For printing, copying, and scanning, the PCAS system in operation across the Bodleian Libraries Group (which includes the PTFL) offers a range of services, paid for using an online account topped up by a debit/credit card.

Philosophy and Theology Faculties Library (PTFL)

The PFTL is open to all current students and staff of the University and provides a popular lending collection to support the wide range of taught courses in the Faculty of Philosophy and the Faculty of Theology and Religion. The collection includes multiple copies of core text books, monographs, reference material and journals. The Library aims to acquire the materials necessary to support the teaching and, to some extent, research needs of its Faculties. Currently, it holds over 30,000 volumes, with a further 20,000 outhoused in the Bodleian’s Book Storage Facility, making c.100,000 loans per.annum. Recently, the library has started trialling an e-first policy, so many of the books needed by theology students are now available as ebooks. The collection reflects the University’s undergraduate courses, although it also caters for graduate students, senior members and academic visitors. For more information, including full details of opening times, regulations and facilities please visit the PFTL website.

The PFTL is located at Radcliffe Humanities near to the Theology Faculty, and full details of opening times, regulations and facilities are published on the PFTL website. The library staff can offer expert guidance in the resources available and useful to students of Theology, Religion and Philosophy. Book requests (for items not held in the Bodleian Libraries) should be made either by email to hilla.wait@bodleian.ox.ac.uk or using the Recommend a Book form on the PTFL website. For general library enquiries, please email pftl@bodleian.ox.ac.uk. Specialist subject enquiries should be directed to the subject librarian.

The Philosophy and Theology Faculties Library provides a number of networked PCs to allow users to access online e-resources, databases, including BibleWorks, e-journals and the internet, as well as the full suite of Microsoft Office. These reader workstations are also set up with access to the Bodleian’s Electronic Legal Deposit collections. Printing is available from all PCs via PCAS. Laptop computers may be used anywhere in the library. Wi-Fi access is available in the Faculty Library as well as in the Bodleian.

Other Libraries

There are over 100 separate libraries within the University, some of which will contain holdings that are relevant to your studies. Other Bodleian sites with particularly useful holdings for students of Theology and Religion are the Oriental Institute Library, the Leopold Muller Memorial Library (Biblical and Jewish Studies) in the Oxford Centre for Hebrew and Jewish Studies, and the Sackler Library (Biblical Archaeology, Classics etc.). Students may also benefit from the collections of the Pusey House Library, which is not part of the Bodleian but undergraduate may apply to register as a reader.

College Libraries

You will have access to your college library, although you might gain access to the libraries of other colleges only by special permission. The most extensive range of books and journals is available from relevant University libraries. Your college library may also hold a range of key texts and resources relevant to your course.

Library catalogues and Reading Lists

The main union catalogue for library holdings in the University and Colleges is SOLO and a selection of Faculty reading lists are available via WebLearn or directly from ORLO (Oxford Reading Lists Online)

WebLearn

The Faculty of Theology and Religion’s WebLearn area contains a lot of information. After logging in with your Single Sign On, you will be able to access the Lecture List and the Undergraduates’ section (access to the Graduates section is restricted to graduate students). The Undergraduates section is organised by course and contains Examination Conventions, Examiners’ Reports, forms, Faculty Booklists and other important Faculty documentation. Lecturers and Tutors may also post teaching resources, e.g. lecture slides and handouts. It also provides information about student representatives and the minutes of the UJCC.

The Philosophy WebLearn area includes a lot of useful information, including course handbooks, teaching resources, examiners’ reports, reading lists, and lecture capture.
IMPORTANT DATES

Dates of term

2. THE COURSE CONTENT AND STRUCTURE

The BA in Philosophy and Theology is a qualification of FHEQ Level 6 award (see the University Awards Framework). You may wish to consult the QAA subject benchmark statement for Theology and Religious Studies and the QAA subject benchmark statement for Philosophy. The BA comprises two examinations: the First Public Examination (Preliminary) and the Second Public Examination (Final Honour School). The duration of the course is three years, except for those students who are admitted as Senior Status and thereby exempted from the first year of study and the Preliminary Examination.

This handbook covers the Honour School in Philosophy and Theology which will be examined in Trinity term 2021.

AIMS AND OBJECTIVES FOR UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

All BA programmes at the Faculty of Theology and Religion aim to enable students to:

- read widely, acquiring knowledge of the history and literature of at least one religious tradition;
- pursue a curriculum that is broad and balanced in respect of historical and generic range, analytical approach, depth, and conceptual sophistication;
- develop their critical, analytical and comparative skills by engagement with a wide range of texts;
- acquire competence in at least one languages of a sacred text
- think critically and in an historicised manner about the complex relationship between religious texts and their social, political, cultural and other relevant contexts;
- select and analyse appropriate examples to investigate, analyse, and assess competing historical and critical viewpoints;
- develop as independent learners and thinkers;
- develop skills in the marshalling and deployment of evidence, and in the oral and written exposition of complex ideas through discursive analysis and argument;
- engage and enhance their enthusiasm for the subject and their awareness of its social and cultural importance; and
- be appropriately prepared for further academic work in related disciplines, or for a range of other careers.

In addition, students of Philosophy and Theology will be enabled to:

- take an active role in deciding on the balance in their studies between Philosophy and Theology, and benefit from the simultaneous study of both disciplines and their interaction;
- acquire knowledge and understanding of Theology, and in particular a grounding in the critical literature about the historical basis of Christianity and especially about the origins and reliability of the New Testament, and in the subsequent development of Christian Theology; acquire a grounding in the history of philosophy, and a knowledge of contemporary debates on some of the central areas of philosophy;

apply philosophical skills to the central questions of the philosophy of religion – whether there is a God, what he is like, and whether we can know anything about whether he is interested in the world and whether religion has any relevance for human life.

develop the ability to think critically and independently about deep issues, to look for underlying principles, and to argue systematically for and against positions.

gain awareness of the philosophical issues that arise in connection with central Christian doctrines, and make some progress in using their philosophical skills in the study of Theology.

INTENDED LEARNING OUTCOMES

Knowledge and Understanding

On completion of the Bachelor of Arts all students will have:

- gained knowledge and understanding of the Christian tradition, through study of the Bible, the development of Christian doctrine in its historical context, and the thought of modern theologians, and been given the opportunity to study another world religion;
- been enabled to form their own judgement on the main themes in their field of study, drawing upon insights from the various sub-disciplines in which they have been engaged;
- been enabled to make connections between the different disciplines they are studying and with other modern intellectual developments;
- developed critical and analytical skills, and the ability to combine insights from such disciplines as history, the reading of texts in their cultural contexts, and the examination of the coherence of truth claims in religion;
- become familiar with key concepts and principles in ###[Title]###;
- developed independence of learning and of approach, and a faculty for critical thinking;
- developed the ability to read with sensitivity texts from different ages and/or traditions, through following a structured programme of regular reading assignments;
- developed and presented (usually in writing) to their tutors their own critical understanding of the issues studied, acquiring good written communication skills, the ability to formulate arguments clearly, and good organizational skills;
- received regular tutorials (and/or seminars) with specialist tutors;
- received regular oral or written feedback on written work;
- had the opportunity to attend lectures designed to complement their other teaching on their chosen core and specialist papers;
- taken an active role in planning a path through their programme.

In addition, students of the BA in Philosophy and Theology will have:

- gained knowledge and understanding of the history of Philosophy and how philosophical skills can be applied to the central questions of the philosophy of religion;
Intellectual skills

On completion of the Bachelor of Arts all students will have the ability to:

- demonstrate comprehension of, and intelligent engagement with, the richness of at least one religious tradition in its varied and central forms;
- state clearly, discuss, and demonstrate critical comprehension of some of the following: the political, social, textual, intellectual, historical, theological, ritual, ethical, institutional or aesthetic expressions of the religion(s) studied;
- discuss and demonstrate, where appropriate, critical comprehension of the religion’s or religions’ classical sources and their subsequent articulations by some interpreters of the tradition(s) in different historical periods and in different social or geographical settings;
- evaluate and critically analyse a diversity of primary and secondary sources, including materials from different disciplines;
- demonstrate comprehension and critically analyse a range of themes, debates and methods of the discipline and where appropriate related disciplines from, for example, the humanities or social sciences and evaluate a range of critical scholarship associated with these disciplines;
- represent views other than the student’s own sensitively and intelligently with fairness and integrity, while as appropriate expressing their own identity without denigration of others, through critical engagement in a spirit of generosity, openness and empathy;
- demonstrate with sensitivity awareness of the passion and claims to certainty that may arise in religious traditions, with their positive and negative effects demonstrate sophisticated understanding of the multi-faceted complexity of religions, for example in the relationship between specifically religious beliefs, texts, practices and institutions, and wider social and cultural structures, norms, aesthetics and aspirations;
- demonstrate intellectual flexibility through the practice of a variety of complementary methods of study (e.g., philosophical, historical, systematic, dogmatic, phenomenological, linguistic, hermeneutical, empirical, speculative, social scientific, archaeological);
- demonstrate awareness of and critical assessment of religious contributions to debate in the public arena about, for example, values, truth, beauty, identity, health, peace and justice; and
- demonstrate a sophisticated understanding of how personal and communal identities and motivations are shaped by religion, how this has both constructive and destructive effects, and how important such identities are.

In addition, students of the BA in Philosophy and Theology will have:

- demonstrate knowledge of the theories and arguments of some of the major philosophers, encountered in their own writings, and some awareness of important areas of interpretive controversy concerning the major philosophers;
- employ historical doctrines to illuminate contemporary debate;
- grasp some of the central theories and arguments in the fields of logic, metaphysics, epistemology, philosophy of mind, and philosophy of religion, broadly understood;
• identify the underlying issues in different kinds of debate;
• analyze the structure of complex and controversial problems with an understanding of major strategies of reasoning designed to resolve such problems;
• judge the success of standard arguments;
• use and understand properly specialized philosophical terminology;
• abstract, analyze, and construct logical arguments, employing the techniques of formal and informal methods of reasoning as appropriate, together with an ability to recognize any relevant fallacies;
• employ detailed argument to support or criticise generalizations in the light of specific implications;
• review unfamiliar ideas with an open mind and to change one’s mind when appropriate;
• knowledge of the theories and arguments of some of the major philosophers, encountered in their own writings, and some awareness of important areas of interpretative controversy concerning the major philosophers
• to apply philosophical skills to the central questions of the philosophy of religion – whether there is a God, what he is like, and whether we can know anything about whether he is interested in the world and whether religion has any relevance for human life.

Practical skills

On completion of the Bachelor of Arts all students will have the ability to:

• find information, organize it well, and deploy it effectively;
• utilize material critically and analytically;
• make appropriate use of advanced literacy skills;
• communicate ideas clearly in diverse written and oral formats;
• work well independently, with a sense of self-direction;
• work constructively with others; and
• organize and utilize time effectively, and work under pressure to deadlines.

Transferable skills

Students will have the opportunity to develop the ability to:

• communicate information, ideas, arguments, principles, theories, and develop an argument by a variety of means, for example essays of various lengths and dissertations which are clearly and effectively organized and presented;
• communicate information, ideas, principles and theories and develop an argument effectively by appropriate oral and visual means, and relate materials to an intended audience;
• identify, gather and analyse primary data and source material, whether through textual studies or fieldwork;
• attend to, reproduce accurately, reflect on and interact with the ideas and arguments of others;
• engage with empathy, integrity and critical reflection with the convictions and behaviours of others;
• work collaboratively as a member of a team or group in a way which allows each individual's talents to be utilized effectively;
• undertake independent/self-directed study/learning (including time management) and reflect on one's strengths and weaknesses as a learner;
• make discriminating use of a full range of library resources in order to identify appropriate source material, compile bibliographies, inform research and enhance presentations;
• use IT and computer skills for data capture, to identify appropriate source material, support research, and enhance presentations; and
• show independence in thought, and critical self-awareness about one's own beliefs, commitments and prejudices.

TEACHING AND RESEARCH

The University is committed to ‘ensuring that students at all levels experience the intersection of research and teaching’ (University Strategic Plan 2013-2018, para 31). A distinctive feature of the University's educational provision is the high level engagement from senior academics who use their current research practice to enhance the learning of the students they teach.

The Faculty of Theology and Religion and the Faculty of Philosophy provide all students with several opportunities for direct experience of the research environment in undertaking the thesis and other extended essays. Students may thereby learn how to draw on available resources and employ the latest methodologies in their own research. Tutorial work for all papers allows students to develop independent study skills in reading and writing, which will be further employed in the Thesis and/or extended essay papers.

Several papers, especially those designed for the Final Year of the Final Honour School, draw on the current research of senior members of the faculty. These papers provide students with a perspective on how knowledge and understanding in Theology and Religion is currently developing and being articulated.

Students are warmly encouraged to attend the public and special lectures which showcase new research by Faculty Members. Students may also follow news and developments on the Faculty Website and social media. Undergraduate students do not normally attend Faculty Research Seminars but if you have a particular interest – especially in your final year – you are welcome to contact the seminar convener for information.
COURSE DESCRIPTION

Please read this information in conjunction with the current Examination Regulations. For students sitting their examination in 2020, these are the Examination Regulations published in Michaelmas Term 2018.

Students who have passed the First Public (Preliminary) Examination may progress to the Final Honour School. Senior Status students are exempted from the Preliminary Examination and enrolled for the Final Honour School.

All students must offer a total of eight papers for the Final Honour School. Three papers must be in Philosophy and three in Theology; the other two may be in either Philosophy or Theology.

Candidates may choose to submit as one of these two free options, a thesis either in Philosophy or in Theology. The regulations governing the thesis in Philosophy are the same as those specified in the Special Regulations for Philosophy in all Honour Schools involving Philosophy. The regulations governing theses in Theology are the same as those specified for theses in the Special Regulations for the Honour School of Theology and Religion.

There are no compulsory papers in Theology. In Philosophy, there is one compulsory paper (107), Philosophy of Religion and students are required to choose a paper from each of two sets of options.

In Philosophy

In Philosophy, students starting the Honour School in or after Michaelmas Term 2017 (examined from 2019) must take the following “core options” for Finals:

- Either Early Modern Philosophy (101) or Knowledge and Reality (102)
- Philosophy of Religion (107)
- One of: Ethics (103), Plato: Republic (115), Aristotle: Nicomachean Ethics (116)

This core combination of papers aims to give students a sound philosophical basis for the understanding of religion at which the degree aims. Students take an option in modern theoretical philosophy, allowing them to engage directly with the some of the greatest debates, either through a topic-based approach or by consideration of the arguments of some of the outstanding philosophers of the early modern period. Philosophy of Religion allows scrutiny of some of the main intellectual premises behind religion and the idea of God. The choice from Ethics, Plato’s Republic and Aristotle’s Nicomachean Ethics allows work on normative ethical theories and meta-ethics, as well as an option to study texts from an earlier great period that have much to offer besides their treatment of moral philosophy.

Often students will take Philosophy of Religion as the second or third paper that they cover. This is to allow them to approach this subject with a good basic understanding of much philosophy relevant to the specialised philosophy of religion.
In addition to their core option papers, students may choose one or two additional options in Philosophy from the following papers (which include those “core options” which have not already been taken), subject to the constraints set out in the general section on Restrictions below:

101 Early Modern Philosophy
102 Knowledge and Reality
103 Ethics
104 Philosophy of Mind
106 Philosophy of Science and Social Science
108 Philosophy of Logic and Language
109 Aesthetics and the Philosophy of Criticism
110 Medieval Philosophy: Aquinas
111 Medieval Philosophy: Duns Scotus / Ockham

Religion and Religions
3401 The Nature of Religion
3402 Psychology of Religion
3403 Sociology of Religion
3404 Further Studies in Science and Religion
Restrictions

There are, however, certain restrictions on which papers you are able to study, please note the following points:

Not all Theology papers will be available every year and certain papers may not run if they do not recruit sufficient students (particularly in the case of papers which are delivered by lecture or class). Some subject groups may select which papers they will deliver based on student demand or the availability of specialist teaching. Some further details are provided in the individual paper descriptions below. Similarly, the choice of subject for the thesis or dissertation will necessarily depend upon availability of a suitable supervisor. Students are advised to discuss their paper choices carefully with their college tutors.

In Theology and Religion, the following papers are available every year:

- 2101 The Narrative World of the Hebrew Bible
- 2102 The Poetic World of the Hebrew Bible
- 2103 The Gospels
- 2204 Key Themes in Systematic Theology
- 2301 History and Theology of the Early Church (64-337AD)
- 2303 Early Modern Christianity 1500-1648
- 3101 Hebrew of the Hebrew Bible
- 3102 Paul and the Pauline Tradition
- 3301 From Nicaea to Chalcedon
- A selection from 3208-3220 Further Studies in a Special Theologian

Prohibited Combinations

No student may take both 106 and 124.

No student may take both 117 and 118.

No student may take both 110 and 111.

No student may offer both a Thesis in Philosophy (199) and a Thesis in Theology (3000).

No student may take both 110 Medieval Philosophy – Aquinas and 3211 Further Studies in a Special Theologian – Aquinas.

Candidates may not take more than four papers from:

- 103 Ethics
- 116 Aristotle, Nicomachean Ethics
- 128 Practical Ethics
- 2202 Ethics I: Christian Moral Reasoning
- 3204 Ethics II: Religious Ethics.
Students may not offer more than two papers from:

- 3208 Origen
- 3209 Augustine
- 3210 Anselm
- 3211 Aquinas
- 3212 Luther
- 3213 Calvin
- 3214 Kierkegaard
- 3215 Newman
- 3217 Barth
- 3218 Tillich
- 3219 Bonhoeffer
- 3220 Rahner

Students may not offer more than two papers from:

- 3303 Faith, Reason and Religion from the Enlightenment to the Romantic Age
- 3305 Further Studies in Judaism
- 3306 Further Studies in Islam
- 3307 Further Studies in Buddhism
- 3308 Further Studies in Hinduism
- 3404 Further Studies in Science and Religion
- 3405 Mysticism.

Theology Paper Prerequisites

None of the second year FHS papers (3101-3406) formally requires the study of particular first year FHS papers (2101-2405) but several paper descriptions indicate where previous experience of the subject or study of another paper would be normal or at least useful for students taking that paper. In some cases this previous study is strongly advised. Where appropriate, this information is noted beneath the paper title in the paper description. You should, therefore, consider this advice carefully before selecting not only your final year options but also the papers you will take in your first year of FHS, in preparation for the final year papers. You should seek the advice of your College Tutor and subject tutors in this regard.

Registration and confirmation of Theology and Religion paper choices

Students are advised to discuss their Theology and Religion paper choices carefully with their college tutors. In the Trinity Term preceding the first year of the Final Honour School and the Hilary Term preceding the second year of the Final Honour School students will be asked to submit their preferred paper choices for the following year. This information enables the Faculty to determine which papers will be offered and to organise teaching. Note that while every endeavour will be made to accommodate students’ first choice of papers, this may be not always be possible.
INDIVIDUAL PAPER DESCRIPTIONS AND RECOMMENDED PATTERNS OF TEACHING

Philosophy

Course descriptions for these papers are available on the Philosophy website (except for the thesis, which can be on a topic in philosophy of your own choosing as agreed with your tutor). Sample Faculty reading lists are available on the Faculty’s WebLearn site. Your Philosophy tutor(s) will be very happy to meet with you to discuss how you might go about choosing the extra Philosophy papers you take (if any).

Theology Papers: The Schedule of Papers

The Faculty of Theology and Religion produces a Schedule of Papers, which is published here on the Faculty Website and contains descriptions of individual papers which amplify, where appropriate, what is in the Examination Regulations. These descriptions detail the aims and objectives of the paper, which define the skills, knowledge and competencies that you should have acquired through its completion. The course delivery is a summary of recommended patterns of teaching. The lecture, class and tutorial descriptions are indicative and may vary from what is listed, in terms of timing, number and content. The Schedule of Papers is supplemented with information and other useful resources found on Weblearn.

Recommended Patterns of Teaching for all papers offered is also presented in a table near the end of the Schedule of the Papers.
Papers are taught in one or more of the following ways:

Tutorials
Tutorials are provided by your college and normally organised by your college tutor.
The purpose of a tutorial is to develop an individual student’s capacity to think in depth about a subject area, and to operate with growing confidence within its techniques and methodologies, with the expectation that the process will promote increased understanding of the subject for both tutor and student. You will normally have one tutor for each paper you are studying and may have tutorials alone with your tutor, or share them with one or two other students. You are likely to attend tutorials with tutors in your own college but equally likely to have tutorials at other colleges, depending on the specialism of different tutors. Each tutorial typically lasts one hour and normally requires students to undertake independent reading and to write an essay (c. 2,500 words) in preparation. Attendance at tutorials is compulsory and failure to satisfy your tutorial obligations normally incurs College academic disciplinary procedures.

Classes
Classes are provided by the Faculty. Classes may be delivered by one tutor or several to a small group of students (c. 10). Classes typically last 60-90 minutes and involve the active participation of students and, in many cases, preparation in advance. Students are expected to attend Faculty classes for the papers they are studying (they are the principal if not the only means of delivering some papers) and a record of attendance may be taken. Absence may be reported to your college tutor.

Lectures
Lectures are provided by the Faculty. Lectures may be delivered by one or more lecturers to a large group of students. Lectures typically occupy 60 minute slot but traditionally begin 5 minutes past the hour and conclude 5 minutes to the hour, allowing time for questions and commuting between lectures. Records of attendance at lectures are not normally kept but students are expected to attend the lectures relevant to the papers they are studying.

Lectures and classes are scheduled by the Faculties and a Lecture Schedule (including details of lecture venues) is published online: Philosophy Faculty Lecture Schedule and Theology and Religion Lecture Schedule. Although every effort is made to produce an accurate and reliable schedule, some updates and changes are inevitable. Please check the online schedule on a regular basis.
The paper descriptions in the Schedule of Papers indicate the typical pattern of delivery (number of tutorials, classes and/or lectures) for each paper. This information is also presented in tabular format in the Recommended Patterns of Teaching grid at the end of the Schedule of Papers.

If you have any issues with teaching or supervision please raise these as soon as possible so that they can be addressed promptly. Details of who to contact are provided in the Complaints and Appeals section of this handbook.

Many papers combine two or three different modes of teaching, which complement one another. Other papers are taught exclusively by class or tutorial. It is important that you receive and attend the appropriate teaching for the paper you are studying and that you understand how to integrate what you learn in the different ways. Consult your subject tutors for the most appropriate advice for the papers you are studying. For example, on the one hand, in certain papers lectures might supply introductory and background information which can then be assumed in tutorials. On the other hand, lectures might provide alternative or cutting edge approaches, designed to provoke thought and consolidation of your understanding. In no case do lectures replace tutorials or tutorials replace lectures. For certain papers, classes are the primary or sole method of teaching and students will be expected to make substantial preparations for and contributions to each class, including the preparation of essays and/or presentations.

University Policy on Recording Lectures and Other Formal Teaching Sessions

Recording devices, such as smart phones and computers are now commonplace. The university has a Policy on the Recording of Lectures and other Formal Teaching sessions by Students. Students are required to take note of this policy; breaches of this policy may be considered a disciplinary offence.
EXPECTATIONS OF STUDY AND STUDENT WORKLOAD

Although you can always rely on the support of your tutors, you are responsible for your own academic progress. In order to balance appropriately the competing demands of academic work and other responsibilities, please consider the following guide to expectations which is based on the University’s Policy and Guidance for Undergraduate Learning and Teaching. If you are to make the most of the academic opportunities available here, you are expected to work hard. However the demands placed on you should always be reasonable and permit you to maintain a healthy ‘work-life balance,’ taking advantage of the other things that Oxford has to offer.

Full-Term

During Full Term it is the University’s expectation is that undergraduate students treat academic study as a full-time commitment, with approximately 40 hours per week typically being spent on focussed academic work during; including both scheduled contact time (lectures, classes and tutorials) and private study. The balance between contact time and private study will vary according to the paper being studied but a clear indication of the contact time recommended for each paper is included in the Schedule of Papers and Recommended Patterns of Teaching Grid. Private study time during Full Term will mainly be spent in preparation for classes and tutorials but you might also need to accommodate other academic necessities, such as revision, consolidation and wider reading.

Overwork

Workloads will vary from week to week, and students will sometimes need or wish to work for longer. However, if you find it impossible to meet your academic obligations without spending significantly longer than 48 hours per week on academic study on a regular basis (rather than occasionally, or for a limited time period), you should seek advice immediately. In the first instance, it is a good idea to discuss the matter with your college tutor but students are welcome to contact the Faculty’s Director of Undergraduate Studies for advice. Please do not suffer in silence! In most cases tutors will be able to suggest practical strategies or take measures to reduce your workload.

Vacations

During vacations, the University expects students to consolidate learning from the last term and to ‘read around’ their subject. They may also need to undertake pre-reading or work in preparation for the next term, or to revise for examinations (which may be college collections or University examinations).

Paid Work

Term-time employment is not permitted except under exceptional circumstances and in consultation with your tutor and senior tutor. During vacations you will be required to complete academic work and this should take priority over other commitments. However, you can find information on placements and paid work here.
THEESIS AND SUBMITTED ESSAYS IN THEOLOGY

The Thesis (Paper 3000) is a compulsory element of the FHS Theology and Religion and may also be undertaken by students in the joint schools with Theology and Religion. The thesis is not taught by tutorial (as such) but is a supervised piece of work. You can find the recommendations for supervision of the Thesis, as well as on the teaching recommendations for each of the papers listed below, in the Schedule of Papers.

Some other papers are assessed, either wholly or in part, by submitted work. These papers (listed below) are available to students for the FHS Theology and Religion; FHS Philosophy and Theology and FHS Theology and Oriental Studies, subject to the restrictions in the Examination Regulations.

3000 Thesis
3109 New Testament Theology
3110 Study of a New Testament Book
3111 The Afterlife of the New Testament
3112 The Old Testament in Early Christianity
3201 Contemporary Theology and Culture
3303 Faith, Reason, and Religion from the Enlightenment to the Romantic Age
3305 Further Studies in Judaism
3306 Further Studies in Islam
3307 Further Studies in Buddhism
3308 Further Studies in Hinduism
3404 Further Studies in Science and Religion
3405 Mysticism
3406 Feminist Approaches to Theology and Religion

Before you begin, make sure you understand the particular requirements of individual papers. Read the instructions given in the Schedule of Papers but always check Examination Regulations. The key details are summarised in the table below.

Choosing a Title

Avoid titles which are too lengthy or unfocussed. The title you submit for your proposal requires much careful thought. A general topic will be much less helpful to you than one which is specific and which shows you have selected a particular subject and know how to handle it.

Make sure your title allows you enough scope. Where the essay comprises the whole assessment for the paper (for example paper 3000, Thesis) your essay should require the equivalent of a full term’s work (say, 8 tutorial essays). But on the other hand, don’t be too ambitious. Remember there is a word limit and that the amount of work expected of you will be the equivalent of one paper. However outstanding the extended essay it can only count for a portion of your degree.

It is very important that you discuss your ideas with your supervisor, who may advise as to the viability of any project and recommend wider reading. In the case of the Thesis, you should discuss your provisional ideas with a college tutor so that he or she is able to engage an appropriate supervisor for you.
Your proposal

This should be submitted electronically using the form which will be circulated by the Faculty Office and published on WebLearn. Your proposal should comprise:

- Title: accuracy is important here – Examination Conventions allow examiners to impose penalties if the title submitted deviates from the title submitted, even in very small ways.
- Outline in about 100 words: You might mention its scope, foci, principal research questions, sources and methods you intend to employ (as relevant).
- Sample (Indicative) Bibliography: this should indicate that you are aware of key primary and secondary sources relevant to your proposed topic. Your bibliography will illustrate the scholarly potential of your chosen area of study and potential conversation partners to be engaged in your discussion of the issues. You are not bound by this bibliography and you will certainly need to read more widely than the items you list with your proposal. As a guideline, for a 12,000 Thesis, you should aim to supply a bibliography of about 20 items; for a 10,000 extended essay, a bibliography of about 15 items and for a 5,000 essay, about 10 items. You may of course, need to exceed these guidelines but remember that this bibliography is expected to be indicative, rather than comprehensive.

Research Integrity and Ethics

The University of Oxford regards research integrity as a core value and has a longstanding commitment to ensuring that it is embedded in its research culture and activity. The University’s Academic Integrity in Research: Code of Practice and Procedure states that all its researchers, be they staff, students or visitors, are expected to maintain the highest standards of rigour and integrity in all aspects of their research. You can access relevant information and resources from the Research Integrity Website.

Occasionally work on Undergraduate work for submission may include research involving human participants. The University is committed to ensuring that its research involving human participants is conducted in a way that respects the dignity, rights, and welfare of participants, and minimises risk to participants, researchers, third parties, and to the University itself. All such research needs to be subject to appropriate ethical review. More information can be found at the Research Ethics website and an online training course can be accessed on WebLearn.

It is not permissible to embark on research involving human research without prior approval from the Central University Research Ethics Committee (CUREC).

Undergraduates are encouraged to consider very carefully any proposal to conduct research involving human participants. (Is it necessary? Will you be able to fulfil the obligations of the University’s Policy?) You should discuss any such plan with your supervisor/tutor and make sure that you are very familiar with the resources linked in this section of the Handbook.
Style and Referencing

Your work should be presented in a formal academic style according to the conventions of scholarship in the area in which you are working. You may wish to consult a Style Guide, which contains recommendations on such issues as: capitalisation, abbreviations, transliteration and more.

You should endeavour to adopt good academic practice, most particularly the avoidance of plagiarism. You should therefore acknowledge your sources in references. Please consult the section on Good Academic Practice and avoiding Plagiarism, which includes advice on referencing. Plagiarism in examined work is a serious disciplinary offence.

University Policy on the use of Third Party Proof-Readers

It is acceptable for students to seek the help of a third party (i.e. not the tutor who has been engaged to supervise your work) in proofreading their longer work (10,000 words or more) but it is important that all students abide by the University’s Policy on the use of Third Party Proof Readers.

Submitting your thesis or essay

The Faculty of Theology and Religion will accept written work for examination only by electronic submission.

Work should be uploaded to the Assignments section of the secure Online Submissions section Theology and Religion WebLearn site. Each submission will require the candidate to make a declaration indicating that the thesis has the same title as that previously approved and to be his or her own work, and that it has not already been submitted (wholly or substantially) for an Honour School other than one involving Theology and Religion, or another degree of this University, or a degree of any other institution. No thesis shall be ineligible for examination because it has been or is being submitted for any prize of this University.

The Faculty has produced Video Guides for Online Submissions, available on WebLearn here, showing how to use the online submission system. Members of the office support are also willing to provide support as the submission deadline approaches.

You may wish to view the Academic Support website on Submissions, including the Framework for the use of WebLearn to manage submission of assessment published by the University’s Education Committee.
GOOD ACADEMIC PRACTICE AND AVOIDING PLAGIARISM

It is important to adopt good academic practice in all of your teaching and learning as well as in examination. Poor academic practice undermines learning and scholarship and may constitute a disciplinary offence by the University and/or your college.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is presenting someone else’s work or ideas as your own, with or without their consent, by incorporating it into your work without full acknowledgement. All published and unpublished material, whether in manuscript, printed or electronic form, is covered under this definition.

Plagiarism may be intentional or reckless, or unintentional. Under the regulations for examinations, intentional or reckless plagiarism is a disciplinary offence.

Plagiarism is a breach of academic integrity. It is a principle of intellectual honesty that all members of the academic community should acknowledge their debt to the originators of the ideas, words, and data which form the basis for their own work. Passing off another’s work as your own is not only poor scholarship, but also means that you have failed to complete the learning process. Deliberate plagiarism is unethical and can have serious consequences for your future career; it also undermines the standards of your institution and of the degrees it issues.

The Plagiarism section of the Oxford Students website provides an extensive and regularly updated definition of different forms of plagiarism, with examples; together with, guidance on how to avoid it. The site also explains the possible consequences of plagiarism and seriousness with which the University views the practice.

The Faculty also strongly recommends that all students complete the brief Online Tutorial, ‘Avoiding Plagiarism’ on WebLearn (you will need to sign in).

Developing Good Academic Practice

Developing good academic practice at the outset both ensures the avoidance of plagiarism and enables students to make the most of their study. The University supplies guidance on e.g. time management, note-taking, research and library skills and much more on the Oxford Students Website: Study Skills and Training.

Referencing

The Faculties of Philosophy and of Theology and Religion do not mandate the use of any particular referencing system, either for examined work or in the work you do throughout the course. There are a number of acceptable referencing styles and it is generally advisable to choose whichever referencing style is commonly used by scholars in the area on which you are working. Above all you should endeavour to be accurate and consistent in your employment of a referencing style (do not combine different styles in the same essay). You are advised to consult your subject tutor about which referencing style they advise you to use in your tutorial essays and for any examined work.
The Oxford Students Website includes a brief guide to Citation and Referencing, including links to helpful websites hosted by other Universities.

The Bodleian Libraries provide good guidance in the LibGuide on Managing your references, including a section on Referencing Styles with links to books, ebooks and a database with comprehensive advice. The LibGuide also includes information on different Reference Management Software that you might wish to employ. You can also access training workshops on different software packages.

Referencing Advice is also available in a number of Style Guides:

The SBL Handbook of Style and the Student Supplement for the SBL Handbook of Style, both published by the Society of Biblical Literature.
4. ASSESSMENT

ASSESSMENT STRUCTURE

Students who have passed the First Public (Preliminary) Examination may progress to the Final Honour School.

No candidate shall be admitted to examination in the Honour School of Philosophy and Theology unless he or she has either passed or been exempted from the First Public Examination.

The languages, subjects, and papers in the examination shall be under the joint supervision of the Boards of the Faculties of Theology and Religion, and of Philosophy, which shall appoint a standing joint committee to make, and to submit to the two boards, proposals for regulations concerning the examination.

All candidates will be required to offer eight papers. The paper options, requirements and restrictions are set out in the Course Description and in Examination Regulations.

Papers are equally weighted and assessed according to the Examination Conventions.

Students and tutors should consult the assessment information provided in the Schedule of Papers and always check the relevant section from the current Examination Regulations. For students sitting their examination in 2021 these are the Examination Regulations that will be published in Michaelmas Term 2019.

Some papers are assessed by written examination; others by submitted thesis/essay(s) and others by a combination of written examination and submitted work.

Forms of assessments may be used in different combinations to:

- reflect the academic practices within the subject;
- formally assess knowledge, understanding, skills and attitudes which must be tested and confirmed as having been acquired;
- provide an opportunity for students with different academic strengths to demonstrate the level of their knowledge, understanding, skills and attitudes in different ways.

All written examinations take place in Trinity Term of the Final Year. Written work must be submitted in the Final Year according to the deadlines set out in Examination Regulations.

Please note that the English version of the Bible used in Examinations will be the New Revised Standard Version. The Greek text used will be the text of the United Bible Societies, 5th Edition. Editions of other texts are specified in the paper descriptions or will be announced by the Faculty of Theology and Religion.
Assimilating feedback on the progress of your learning is really important for your academic development. For further information on the role and importance of feedback at Oxford University and beyond, please see the University's Policy and Guidance on Undergraduate Learning and Teaching. During your course you will receive different kinds of feedback.

Informal Formative Feedback

The nature of a tutorial is to provide immediate oral feedback on your understanding arguments and expression. Tutorial discussion involving other students also provides the opportunity to receive feedback from and supply feedback to your peers. The same is true of teaching in a class context.

Tutors also provide some written feedback on your tutorial essays. This may complement the tutorial discussion and address opportunities for improvement in your tutorial essay composition, as well as providing advice which is relevant to writing examination essays (although a tutor may not necessarily employ formal Examination Conventions when marking tutorial work, which is not for examination).

If submitted written work or presentations are required for classes. Tutors should indicate how they intend to provide any written feedback on this work.

Language classes typically require students to complete tests and exercises which will be marked and corrected (by the tutor or by the student, under supervision) and so provide an indication of progress and areas for improvement.

Formal Formative Feedback

Tutors for tutorials are required to submit a report to your college at the end of week 7 through the online system, OxCORT (Oxford Colleges On-line Reports for Tutorials). Your college will normally allow you to read these reports and you can find a Student Guide to using OxCORT on its homepage.

At the beginning of each term, Colleges typically arrange practice examinations, called ‘Collections’ on study completed in the previous term. Collections encourage you to consolidate and revise the terms work, allow you to practice answering questions under exam conditions and provide the opportunity for feedback on examination performance.

Summative Feedback

The marks you achieve in your Preliminary and Final examinations constitute the individual summative feedback you will receive. As well as receiving an overall “outcome” or degree classification, we release a numerical mark for each paper you sit. Qualitative written feedback on individual examination performance is not normally available but the Examiners’ Report, which is published on WebLearn during the term after the examination, includes anonymous feedback on the performance of your cohort. You may find it helpful to consult the Examiners’ Reports from previous years for generic advice on successful performance and common pitfalls.

ADVICE CONCERNING EXAMINATIONS

You can find comprehensive information on the examinations and assessments process at the University from entering for examinations through to accessing your results on the Examinations and Assessments Website. In particular, please note the sections relating Alternative Examination Arrangements.

Past Examination papers are available on OXAM (you will need your SSO).

Entering for University Examinations

Students are responsible for ensuring they are entered for the correct examinations. Please consult the Examination Entry website for instructions and follow them carefully. A fee may be charged for late entries or corrections. The Examination Entry website includes a spreadsheet indicating the various deadlines for making examination entries.

Examination dates and Timetables

Final Honour School written examinations will take place in the latter part of Trinity Term of your final year; Theology and Religion examinations are usually timetabled in weeks 6 and 7. If you are studying papers shared with Philosophy and Oriental Studies may take place in other weeks but the dates, time and venues of all relevant examinations will appear in the examination timetable for your course.

Timetables are published here as early as possible, and no later than five weeks before the start of the examination. Provisional dates for the start of exams are published in a spreadsheet on the Examination Entry website.

Sitting your examination

Detailed information on (a) the standards of conduct expected in examinations and (b) what to do if you would like examiners to be aware of any factors that may have affected you performance before or during and examination (such as illness, accident, or bereavement) are available in the Sitting your Examinations section of the Oxford Students Website. Before you attend your examination, please ensure that you are familiar with this information, which will be reiterated in a letter you will receive from the Chair of your Examination Board.
EXAMINATION CONVENTIONS

Examination conventions are the formal record of the specific assessment standards for the course or courses to which they apply. They set out how your examined work will be marked and how the resulting marks will be used to arrive at a final result and classification of your award. They include information on: marking scales, marking and classification criteria, scaling of marks, progression, resits, use of viva voce examinations, penalties for late submission, and penalties for over-length work.

Examination Conventions are agreed by the Board of Examiners each year. You will receive a copy of the Examination Conventions which will apply to your Examination in 2021 not less than one before term before your examination takes place, when they will also be published on the Examination Conventions page of WebLearn.

Last year’s Examination Conventions remain available on WebLearn and may be used cautiously as a guide to standards. They are not binding or necessarily representative in every particular of the Conventions that will be published for your examination in 2021.

Please note that the failure to attend an examination will result in the failure of the whole Second Public Examination (Finals).

EXTERNAL EXAMINER’S AND EXAMINERS’ REPORTS

Each year a board of examiners will be convened to carry out the examination of your course. The membership of the Examination board will be published with the Examination Conventions for your exam (see above). The University also appoints one or more external examiners (academics based at other institutions) to serve on each Finals (FHS) Examination Board. The names of all internal and external examiners are included in the Examination Conventions, which you will receive not less than one whole term before your examination. When the examination is completed, the internal and external examiners are required to submit reports on the examination.

Examiners’ reports (including for previous examinations) remain in the Examiners’ Reports section of the Faculty’s Weblearn area. It is a good idea to consult reports on past examinations as these frequently include comments on individual papers or questions, which might enable you to prepare more effectively for your examination (see Summative feedback, above). You can expect the report of your own examination to be available in the term after the results have been released.

Students are strictly prohibited from contacting external examiners directly. If you are unhappy with an aspect of your assessment you may make a complaint or appeal (see below).
PRIZES

On the recommendation of the Board of Examiners, several prizes are awarded for excellent performance in examination. No special application is required. The terms and value of the prizes are subject to change but the following details are correct for 2019-20.

Gibbs Prizes

Two prizes to be awarded to deserving candidates who shall be members of the University who, at the beginning of the examination, have not exceeded the twelfth term from their matriculation, and are reading for a final Honour School, except that Council may grant dispensation, on grounds of protracted illness or other good reason, to a candidate who has exceeded the twelfth term from his or her matriculation.

1. Awarded for the best performance in theology in the Final Honour School of Philosophy and Theology.
2. Awarded for the best performance in philosophy in the Final Honour School of Philosophy and Theology.

Junior Greek Testament Prize

Outstanding performance in relation to the New Testament in the original Greek in respect of translation, criticism, and interpretation as demonstrated in any part of the Final Honour School of Theology and Religion; Philosophy and Theology; and Religion and Oriental Studies.

Henry Wilde Prize

Awarded to the best performance in philosophy papers across all eight undergraduate philosophy schools.

Elizabeth Anscombe Prize

Awarded to the best undergraduate thesis in philosophy across all eight undergraduate philosophy schools.

John Duns Scotus Prize in Medieval Philosophy

Awarded to the best performance by a candidate in any philosophy school on a paper in Medieval Philosophy (papers 110 Aquinas and 111 Duns Scotus, Ockham).
5. SKILLS AND LEARNING DEVELOPMENT

ACADEMIC PROGRESS

Your college is responsible for monitoring your academic progress, which may be recorded on OxCORT, (see Formal Formative Feedback, above). Your college will provide further detailed information on how your academic progress is monitored. In the case of classes organised by the Faculty, class tutors and instructors will monitor your work and may report to your college.

If you are concerned about any aspect of your academic progress, speak with your college tutor, in the first instance, or your college’s Senior Tutor. Your college will understand your individual situation and progress best but you are also welcome to contact the Faculty of Theology and Religion’s Director of Undergraduate Studies or contact James Knight at the Philosophy Faculty in order to discuss any concerns or questions about your progress.

LEARNING DEVELOPMENT AND SKILLS

Students on the Faculty’s BA programme are expected to develop a range of intellectual, practical and transferable skills (outlined above).

Essential, generic undergraduate study skills include: literature searching and review (including appropriate IT literacy), note-taking, good academic practice (including appropriate citation and referencing), critical thinking, essay-writing, problem-solving, argumentation (both oral and written), use of language, time management and revision.

The University provides a wide range of information and training materials are available to help you develop study skills and other relevant training.

- Oxford Students Website: Study Skills and Training
  Extensive guidance and training resources including on: plagiarism; managing your workload; research and library skills; referencing; revision and examination preparation; tutorial skills and academic writing

- The Language Centre
  Provides courses and resources for language learning, including improvement of English and Academic English for non-native speakers

- Student Welfare and Support Services
  Personal support intended to enable individual students to fulfil their potential.

- IT Services Training
  IT Services provide a range of classroom based training courses as well as online courses for you to study at your own pace. Many courses are free or discounted for students.
Oxford LibGuides  Access to guides and training courses on using a wide variety of library resources and facilities, including facilities for disabled readers and the use of reference Management software.

Your college may provide further opportunities for skills training. The Faculty is keen to provide skills training, where appropriate, and you will receive notification by email of skills training arranged by the Faculty. This will include advanced library and research skills to support FHS students in writing their Thesis.

CAREERS INFORMATION AND ADVICE

The academic and college environment at Oxford University is rich with opportunities for you to develop many transferable skills that are eagerly sought by employers. Undertaking an intellectually demanding academic course will equip you for the demands of many jobs. Your course will enable you to research, summarise, present and defend an argument with some of the best scholars in their subject. Under the direction of an experienced researcher, you will extend their skills and experiences through practical or project work, placements or fieldwork, writing extended essays or dissertations. In college and university sports teams, clubs and societies you will have the chance to take the lead and play an active part within and outside the University.

Surveys of our employers report that they find Oxford students better or much better than the average UK student at key employability skills such as Problem Solving, Leadership, and Communication. Hundreds of recruiters visit the University each year, demonstrating their demand for Oxford undergraduate and postgraduate students, fewer than 5% of whom are unemployed and seeking work six months after leaving.

Comprehensive careers advice and guidance is available from the Oxford University Careers Service, and not just while you are here: our careers support is for life. We offer tailored individual advice, job fairs and workshops to inform your job search and application process, whether your next steps are within academia or beyond. You will also have access to thousands of UK-based and international internships, work experience and job vacancies available on the Careers Service website.

See also the Skills and Work Experience page of the Oxford Students website.
6. STUDENT REPRESENTATION, EVALUATION AND FEEDBACK

HOW IS THE COURSE RUN?

The BA in Philosophy and Theology is jointly administered by the Faculties of Philosophy and of Theology and Religion. The Faculty Boards (which are elected governing bodies) of Philosophy and Theology and Religion appoint a Standing Joint Committee for Philosophy and Theology. This committee is directly responsible for the course and makes recommendations to the two Faculty Boards. The Standing Joint Committee meets once each term.

The Joint Standing Committee for Philosophy and Theology has one junior member, i.e. an undergraduate student. Any BA Philosophy and Theology student is very welcome to contact the secretary of the committee (currently James Knight in Philosophy) if they wish to raise issues or concerns regarding the degree for consideration by the committee. It is not always obvious where to raise any concerns you might have: do not let this discourage you. James Knight can be contacted in the first instance to ask what forum might best serve for airing the issue you want to raise.

Students are also encouraged to participate in the mechanisms for student representation and feedback at each of the Faculties.

DEPARTMENT REPRESENTATION: UJCC AT THE PHILOSOPHY FACULTY

The Philosophy Undergraduate Joint Consultative Committee (UJCC) invites students from all eight joint schools in Philosophy and has a meeting once a term, attended by the Director of Undergraduate Studies. The UJCC is run by undergraduate representatives, a Chair and a Secretary, who additionally attend the Philosophy Undergraduate Studies Committee meetings as junior members, feeding back queries and concerns where appropriate. An email is sent around each year inviting all students reading one of the eight Philosophy degrees to attend.

DEPARTMENT REPRESENTATION: UJCC OF THE FACULTY OF THEOLOGY AND RELIGION

Role of the Committee

The Undergraduate Joint Consultative Committee (UJCC) provides an official channel of communication between undergraduates and the Board of the Faculty of Theology and Religion. It consists of up to five junior members, elected by the undergraduates, and three senior members: the Chair of the Faculty Board, the Director of Undergraduate Studies and Outreach and the Secretary of the Faculty.

The UJCC receives a report from the Chair on matters affecting undergraduates that are currently being discussed by the Faculty Board. It can also discuss any other issues of concern to undergraduates such as student welfare, the syllabus, teaching arrangements, library facilities and the general aspects of examinations, including examiners’ reports. UJCC Minutes and recommendations are received and considered by the Undergraduate Studies Committee and the Faculty Board. Major faculty committees may refer questions to UJCC and undergraduate representatives also sit on the Faculty Board, the Undergraduate Studies Committee and the Committee for Library Provision and Strategy.

Nomination and Election of Undergraduate Representatives

Junior members of the UJCC hold office from the beginning of Trinity Term for one year (for no more than two successive terms) and are elected by students annually in Hilary Term.

Students studying the BA in Theology and Religion; BA Philosophy and Theology and BA Theology/Religion and Oriental Studies are eligible both to stand for election and to vote in the election.

At the beginning of Hilary Term, the Faculty Office will circulate a call for nominations, to be received before the end of week 2. Nominations are usually gathered electronically and each nominee requires two other undergraduates who are willing to serve as nominators.

If more than five nominations are received, an election will be conducted by electronic survey before the end of week 4 of Hilary Term.

Full details of the process and eligibility will be circulated by the Faculty Office in Hilary Term.

Meetings and Business

UJCC meets each term on Tuesday of week 4. Current Representatives are listed on WebLearn. If you have concerns or business you wish to be raised at UJCC, please contact one of the representatives.

Minutes from UJCC meetings are posted on WebLearn.

DIVISION AND UNIVERSITY REPRESENTATION

Student representatives sitting on the Divisional Board are selected through a process organised by the Oxford Student Union (Oxford SU). Details can be found on the Oxford SU website along with information about student representation at the University level.
OPPORTUNITIES TO PROVIDE EVALUATION AND FEEDBACK

University wide Feedback

Students on full-time matriculated courses are surveyed once per year on all aspects of their course (learning, living, pastoral support, college) through the Student Barometer. Details and previous results can be viewed by students, staff, and the general public by following the links from the Student Engagement website. This website also supplies information on other mechanisms and exercises for providing and analysing student feedback.

Final year undergraduates are surveyed instead through the National Student Survey. Details and results from previous NSS can be found on Unistats website.

The Faculty discusses feedback from University-wide surveys when it becomes available at meetings of the UJCC, the Undergraduate Studies Committee and the Faculty Board. Student commentary on these survey results is always appreciated.

Philosophy Faculty Feedback

Consultation of students is a serious concern to departments and faculties and takes a number of forms discussed below. It is important that you give us your views and feel free to do so, in order that we may deal with problems that arise both relating to you personally and to the course. Feedback from students involves you as individuals making the effort to complete lecture or tutorial report forms or to seek out college or departmental officers for discussion, but it also takes an institutional form via the Joint Consultative Committees. The feedback which you provide to lecturers and tutors is valued and taken seriously. It has an important contribution to make to maintaining the quality of education you receive at Oxford.

The Faculty of Philosophy makes an online lecture questionnaire, available through its website. This is provided for you to comment anonymously on each set of lectures. The results of the questionnaire are seen by the lecturer and also considered by the Undergraduate Studies Committee, the JCCs and the Faculty Board, which is responsible for ensuring that any problems reported through the questionnaires are addressed.
Faculty of Theology and Religion Feedback

The Faculty uses two equivalent feedback mechanisms:

1. The Undergraduate Suggestion and Comment Box

This is located on the main corridor of the Faculty next to the Book Exchange. Paper is available and students are encouraged to supply anonymous feedback to the Faculty, which could be praise, criticism or constructive suggestions. Your comments might apply to particular lecture series, facilities, information supplied to students and faculty procedures. Please include your course, year group and the name of lecture series, if relevant.

2. The Virtual Undergraduate Suggestion and Comment Box

This Google Form is an electronic version of the Comment Box. This is an opportunity to submit free text and anonymous feedback. A link to the form will be circulated at the beginning of the year and at regular intervals throughout.

These will be checked on a regular basis and comments submitted will be considered by the Undergraduate Studies Committee and UJCC, the minutes of which are received by the Faculty Board. It is hoped that students will find this flexible method a convenient and appropriate way to convey their feedback to the Faculty.

At any time you are welcome to contact the Director of Studies, the Administrative Staff or to make a formal complaint. Faculty staff and members invest a lot of time and effort in the provision for students. Please let your teachers know what they have done well and how they might improve. Comments on Faculty Teaching are particularly encouraged.

Your college will have mechanisms for providing feedback on your tutorials. You are encouraged to provide feedback on College teaching to your College in the first instance.
7. STUDENT LIFE AND SUPPORT

WHOM TO CONTACT FOR HELP

Every college has its own systems of support for students. Please refer to your college handbook or website for more information on whom to contact and what support is available through your college.

Details of the wide range of sources of support that are available more widely in the University are available from the Oxford Students website, including in relation to mental and physical health and disability.

If you are taken ill at the Faculty, please inform a member of staff, preferably in the main administrative office, immediately.

If you are unwell or otherwise unable to attend a Faculty Class, please endeavour to inform your tutor in advance. You may send a message via the relevant Faculty Office, if necessary.

COMPLAINTS AND ACADEMIC APPEALS

The University, the Humanities Division and the Faculties of Theology and Religion and Philosophy Faculty all hope that provision made for students at all stages of their course of study will result in no need for complaints (about that provision) or appeals (against the outcomes of any form of assessment).

Where such a need arises, an informal discussion with the person immediately responsible for the issue that you wish to complain about (and who may not be one of the individuals identified below) is often the simplest way to achieve a satisfactory resolution.

Many sources of advice are available from colleges, faculties/departments and bodies like the Counselling Service or the Oxford SU Student Advice Service, which have extensive experience in advising students. You may wish to take advice from one of those sources before pursuing your complaint.

General areas of concern about provision affecting students as a whole should be raised through Joint Consultative Committees or via student representation on the faculty/department’s committees.

Complaints

If your concern or complaint relates to teaching or other provision made by the faculty/department, then you should raise it with the Director of Undergraduate Studies, Dr Mary Marshall. Dr Marshall is also able to bring concerns relating to the course as a whole (rather than to teaching or other provision made by one of the faculties/departments) with the Joint Standing Committee of the Faculties of Philosophy.
Complaints about departmental facilities at the Faculty of Theology and Religion should be made to the Faculty’s Head of Administration and Finance or at the Philosophy Faculty to the Administrator, Mr James Knight.

If you feel unable to approach one of those individuals, you may contact the Chair of the Faculty Board, Prof. Graham Ward (Theology and Religion) or Prof. Christopher Timpson (Philosophy). The officer concerned will attempt to resolve your concern/complaint informally.

If you are dissatisfied with the outcome, then you may take your concern further by making a formal complaint to the Proctors under the University Students Complaints Procedure. The procedures adopted by the Proctors for the consideration of complaints and appeals are described on the Complaints and Academic Appeals Website, the Student Handbook and the relevant Council regulations.

If your concern or complaint relates to teaching or other provision made by your college, you should raise it either with your tutor or with one of the college officers, such as the Senior Tutor. Your college will also be able to explain how to take your complaint further if you are dissatisfied with the outcome of its consideration.

Academic appeals

An academic appeal is an appeal against the decision of an academic body (e.g. boards of examiners, transfer and confirmation decisions etc.), on grounds such as procedural error or evidence of bias. There is no right of appeal against academic judgement.

If you have any concerns about your assessment process or outcome it is advisable to discuss these first informally with your subject or college tutor, Senior Tutor, course director, director of studies, supervisor or college or departmental administrator as appropriate. They will be able to explain the assessment process that was undertaken and may be able to address your concerns. Queries must not be raised directly with the examiners.

If you still have concerns you can make a formal appeal to the Proctors who will consider appeals under the University Academic Appeals Procedure.

The Proctors will only consider complaints about the conduct of examinations, not appeals against examiners’ academic judgement. The Proctors will only authorise the re-checking of marks if there is evidence of an irregularity having occurred or if some other sufficiently serious justification is in play. Papers will be re-marked only if investigation by the Proctors has found a serious problem in the original examination process.

STUDENT CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

The University boasts a huge number of diverse student clubs and societies; you can find a complete list here.
POLICIES AND REGULATIONS

The University has a wide range of policies and regulations that apply to students. These are easily accessible through the A-Z of University regulations, codes of conduct, and policies available on the Oxford Students website.

Equality and Diversity at Oxford

“The University of Oxford is committed to fostering an inclusive culture which promotes equality, values diversity and maintains a working, learning and social environment in which the rights and dignity of all its staff and students are respected.” University of Oxford Equality Policy.

Oxford is a diverse community with staff and students from over 140 countries, all with different cultures, beliefs and backgrounds. As a member of the University you contribute towards making it an inclusive environment and we ask that you treat other members of the University community with respect, courtesy and consideration.

The Equality and Diversity Unit works with all parts of the collegiate University to develop and promote an understanding of equality and diversity and ensure that this is reflected in all its processes. The Unit also supports the University in meeting the legal requirements of the Equality Act 2010, including eliminating unlawful discrimination, promoting equality of opportunity and fostering good relations between people with and without the 'protected characteristics' of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion and/or belief, sex and sexual orientation. Visit our website for further details or contact us directly for advice: visit the Equality and Diversity Unit website or equality@admin.ox.ac.uk.

The Equality and Diversity Unit also supports a broad network of harassment advisors in departments/faculties and colleges and a central Harassment Advisory Service. For more information on the University’s Harassment and Bullying policy and the support available for students visit the Harassment Advice website.

There are a range of faith societies, belief groups, and religious centres within Oxford University that are open to students. For more information visit the Religion and Belief website.

Student Welfare and Support Services

The Disability Advisory Service (DAS) can provide information, advice and guidance on the way in which a particular disability may impact on your student experience at the University and assist with organising disability-related study support. For more information visit the Disability Advisory Service website

The Counselling Service is here to help you address personal or emotional problems that get in the way of having a good experience at Oxford and realising your full academic and personal potential. They offer a free and confidential service. For more information visit the Counselling Service website.
A range of services led by students are available to help provide support to other students, including the peer supporter network, the OUSU Student Advice Service and Nightline. For more information visit the Student Led Support website.

OXFORD SU also runs a series of campaigns to raise awareness and promote causes that matter to students. For full details, visit: the Oxford SU Campaigns website.

There is a wide range of student clubs and societies to get involved in - for more details visit the Clubs and Societies website.

CREDITS

This handbook includes much material lifted from publications issued by the University of Oxford, particularly from sections of the ox.ac.uk website. Material is quoted verbatim and in paraphrase, in whole and in part. The original source of the material is usually linked in the relevant section of the handbook.
